GORDON.

Son—Another Term in the Senate.

The houses of the legislature presented a sene on yesterday never equaled in Georgia's history. General Gordon, the candidate for United States senator, without a party or caucus nomination, was re-elected by a unanimous vote of the senate and without opposition in the house. Despite the fact that it was known that all efforts to organize an opposition to Gordon had failed, a large crowd had collected in the gallery of the house to witness the election long before it was announced. A large number of ladies were present, prominent among them the charming wife of the hero of the day. There was a great deal of enthusiasm and quiet satisfaction, only the occasion being lacking to bring it out fully. With a plain walk-over in sight, and the favorite going without opposition to the crowd had pothing to do but sight, and the favorite going without opposition to consult parliament and the event of war being declared not to advance of the communication and population and without opposition in the house. With a plain walk-over in sight, and the favorite going without opposition, the crowd had nothing to do but sit down quietly and enjoy itself by feeling good. Contrary to expectation there was no convention of the houses, the law requiring that the first day's balloting shall be done in separate sessions. This, of course lessened the demonstrations, as it divided the crowd and put off the official announcement. In the senate at the announcement that the first day's balloting shall be done in separate sessions. This, of course lessened the demonstrations, as it divided the crowd and put off the official announcement. In the senate at the announcement that the the election was on hand, Senator Jos. B. Cumming arose, and in a ringing voice, placed the Hon. John B. Gordon in nomination. There was no other name announced, although we learn a member of the house tried to have the name of a distinguished Georgian introduced. No senator was found to be willing to raise his voice against Gordon. The call of the roll, was commenced and seach senator arose, the word "Gordon" sell from his lips, and another mark was added to the score of the brilliant Georgian. The vote was literally unanimous. Loydos, November 19.—Prince Dondankif Korsakoff, the governor of Bulgaria, has arrived at Odessa on his way to Livardia to report upon state affairs in Turkey. A Vienna correspondent of the Times thinks that in view of the fact that Prince Korsakoff has expressed his opposition to the treaty of Berlin the appointment of another governor of Bulgaria will be probable. Bucharest newspapers publish particulars of the Russian demands, which, if correct, materially detract from their significance. They seem only to have asked for increased facilities for inter-communication during the term of occupation of Bulgaria, nevertheless according to the "Roumania Liberta" newspaper, the Bucharest government has already declined the Russian proposal, declaring that the existing facilities are not all that Russia needs, according to the treaty of Berlin and of the Russo-Roumanian convention.

Said Pasha, formerly first secretary to the saltan, now governor of the province of Browsa, has been recalled to Constantinopic, and it is rumored that he will resume the ministry of public works. This is an important indication of English supremacy in Turkish affairs. Said Pasha was sent into a species of honorable exile at Broussa on account of his friendship for Mr. Layard, British ambassador to Constantinople, and his strong English sympathies, which were so well known that he was nicknamed "The Englishman."

The modifications made by the international Roumelian commission in the Turkish project for organic reforms have been accepted by the porte. Prominent among them is the appointment of a permanent commission of seven members to be elected by the Roumelian national assembly.

man he has, since the war, illustrated all that is chivalrous and all that is conservative in the new life and in the history of the south. Among those whose presence and influence have contributed to give this section and this state their proper place in the national councils, General Gordon stands preeminent, and the tribute paid to him yesterday by the general assembly was well deserved. No senator more thoroughly represents his people in all that is characteristic of their past and hopeful in their future, and no southerner possesses in a more eminent degree those peculiarities of temper and courage that may be said to be illustrative of his section.

After a brief recital of the nature and extent of the epidemic, Dr. Harris disclaimed the intention of offering a theory or expecting to work miracles, expressing a belief, however, that a scientific investigation can assert mastery over the scourge. This is an opinion in which the recent body of evidence now accumulating confirmed him. The gentlemen present had come to investigate and judge on the evidence presented, the cause of the disease without regard to previous theories, whatever their nature. He predicted a free and frank expression of views, and alluded to the fact that the movement was approved by sanitarians, jurists and legislators, whose object was to determine the state and city obligations as applied to the suppression of the causes of pestilence—whenever the humar race is in such a situation as to lose its strength, courage, liberty, wisdom and lofty emotions. The Failures in England.

The business troubles of England which are directly and unmistakably traceable to the foolish mono-metalism that she in great part inaugurated, are, we regret to say, by no means decreasing. Heavy failures are still daily occurrences. The India trade has terribly suffered, and a heavy London failure that occurred last Wednesday brought down a Hamburg house in the China trade. "These oc currences," says the New York Daily Bulletin, "must be regarded as the imme "diate result of the contraction of dis-"counts recently adopted by the banks;
"and as the result will only intensify the "caution of the banks, it would seem that "a great deal of liquidation may yet have "to be done. This condition of things in "sales, which in turn means lower pri "and lower prices in the British man very general on this side the Atlantic, that values have seen their lowest point is mistaken. There are symptoms on final solution in the lowest range of prices that has been known since the introduction of steam; and, indeed, that seems to be the only natural result of.

power of production." Mr. Stephens's Views.

As one of the early congressional birds, Mr. Stephens has arrived in Washington and been plucked by the interviewers He has been attacked in this manner by the Washington Post and the Baltimore Gazette in interviews of a column or elsewhere. These quotations will be found to contain some exceedingly spicy reading. Mr. Stephens's views are always worth cording, but at this juncture they are really entertaining. Looking upon the political situation calmly and impartially, Mr. Stephens is inclined to believe that the views of the democracy should be more liberal and more national in its policy-that its platform should be broader. In what particular direction this broadness should extend, Mr. Stephens does not stop but it is to be presumed that the aged statesman believes

King Alfred's Lantern.

St. Nicholas for December. Did you ever try to imagine, when you were studying the beginnings of English tory, what kind of people those old Anlo-Saxons were, and how they lived? They ere our far-off ancestors, and our language or the most part was made from theirs; in act, we are called Anglo-Saxons ourselves so we ought to be interested in them.

They were a rude people in many re-spects, and lived in a rude way, compared with ours. How would you like windows which had no glass in them-very small windows, too-but had oiled paper or sheets of horn instead? Of course the rooms must have been dark and dismal, you will say And what would you think of houses without chimneys, or anything we should call out chimneys, or anything we should call chimneys? But matters were really not much better, even in king's houses, about ten hundred years ago.

The most important room in those days was called the hall; and it was large enough to accommodate the family, the great company of servants, and all the guests who chose to come. They ate there, ast there, and most of them slept there, on rough benches, or rolled up in skins on the floor. It was open to every chance traveler, to the wandering harvers, to beggers and everywandering harpers, to beggers and every-body else.

The fire was built against a clay or stone arrangement, answering for a fire-place, at one end, or on an immense stone hearth in the middle; and the smoke, after a floating the middle; and the smoke, after a floating up overhead, found its way out through an opening or a kind of turret in the roof. At dark they heaped high the logs and fagots; and happy was he who on a stormy night could get near the blaze. When suppertime came, servants stood behind those at table and held torches over their heads till the meal was over; and when bed-time came, the guests who had any other place than the hall to sleep in were lighted to it in the same way.

came, the guests who had any other place than the hall to sleep in were lighted to it in the same way.

As for the king, he was more privileged than that; though just what they first used for lights, and just when lamps became common among the Anglo-Saxons, it is not easy to find out. We see in some very old pictures a simple little lamp, shaped perhaps like a saucer, hung by chains at the side of the room, and holding, no doubt, a piece of wax or some kind of oll, with a strip of cloth in it for a wick. Sometimes, in the royal chambers, for a long time after King Alfred's day, a light was kept by means of a cake of wax in a silver basin.

They knew how to make candles, however, but instead of putting one in a candlestick, it was put on it. The candlestick had a point at the top, called a spike, and the candle was made hollow at the bottom, and slipped down over the spike, and so fixed was known as a "pricket."

known as a "pricket. was known as a "pricket."

There is, among some illustrations of old customs, a picture of s candlestick, which is very queer though very elegant, and looks like a little piece of furniture. It is a tall stem rising from a three-footed, three-corrected in the contraction of the stem rising from a three-footed, three-cor-nered stand, very much ornamented; it comes to a point at the top, and a little way below is a plate to hold the tallow or wax that might run down. We do not know that King Alfred had anything like this; but he had what nobody had ever seen before in that country, for he invented it himself, and that was a lantern. This good king was a very busy man; the people around him might be willing to idle the best, the wisest, and the most learned king that the Saxons had ever had.

He used to carry in his bosom "memorandum leaves, in which he made collections from his stidies," and this journal he was in the habit of examining so much that "hecalled it his hand-book." And, perhaps, that is where the word "hand-book" came from. Of course he read far into the night, but he soon found two troubles—there was no way to mark the time, for there were no clocks or watches then, and he could not keep a steady light, because the houses were so open that the wind came in from every quarter. He had noon-marks, but those amounted to nothing on ra'ny days; and everybody knows what a country England is for rain.

Hywever, when such a man as Alfred makes up his mind to do a thing, he is almost sure to find a way. So he had a quantity of wax prepared, took enough offit to weigh down seventy-two silver pennies, and of it had six candles made, all weighing the same, and each twelve inches long, and marked off into twelve divisions. He slanned so nicely that these six would burn twenty-lour hours; and he always kept one lighted day and night before some holy relics and images of saints which he had, and which, being a very pious man, he carried about with his luggage wherever he went.

He would now have had not only tolerthe light, but a very good way of marking he hours, if the candles had always been ure of burning a given time. But if the wind blew, the flame would flare, and persure of burning a given time. But if the wind blew, the flame would flare, and perhaps go out; and the king made up his mind that there could be something done to remedy this—and he did it. He made a frame-work, and fixed into it little plates or windows of horn, scraped so thin that the light could shine through, set his candle inside, and shut it in—and the thing was done. He had a lantern sure in, all weathers. A very small affair it may seem to you, but it was a great one to him.

I once saw a picture of a rude Saxon lantern somewhat like his, perhaps, though it was an improvement on it; for no sooner does one man invent a thing than another finds a way to make it better. This, in shape, made me think of a bird-cage without the tray or railing. It had a kind of cupola-like top, and was much ornamented; there were bands with bosses on them, looking like metal, around the bottom, the middle, and next to the roof; and there was a pretty arched door. Altogether, it was a very curious, but a rather clumsy and rather dark lantern.

—The London correspondent of the Cardiff Times gives this bit of mysterious gossip: "All the world is talking of a peer of the realm, a bridegroom of only a few weeks, who since his marriage has broken out in the wildest and most eccentric way, and is behaving himself so strangely, that if his conduct continues an asylum must be sought for him. As captain of a corps he took his, men to church, left them at the door, and retired to a hotel, there got drunk, became forthwith so generous with his gold that the waiter netted several weeks earnings by one Sunday morning's work, and finally got instructions which had to be countermanded by his colonel. Next day he was distributing 25 notes to his hostlers. He makes nothing of ordering a special train if he wants to go a short distance. A pleasant state of things this for a bride. It is to be hoped that she can solace herself with the coronet which was so remorsely forced upon her."

—The Court Circular of November 2 says:

The Court Circular of November 2 says:
"During the absence of the queen and court in Scotland, the various departments have been busied in the restoration and renovation of several of the principal state-rooms at Windsor Castle, in anticipation of the approaching marriage of the Duke of Connaught, which will take place, according to the most recent arrangements, about the middle of February. The Waterloo chamber which is to be used for state banquets is now in the hands of the artificers, and the valuable historical portraits which adorn its walls are being cleaned by artists employed for this purpose. In the green drawing-room, another of the state apartments, the costly furniture, unique of its kind, has been recovered and restored. At the present time a large amount of work is going on within the interior of the palace, most of which, it is expected, will be finished prior to the return of her majesty and Princess Beatrice from Balmoral about the 21st of November." The Court Circular of November 2 says —A French engineer named Duponchel has made a report on the project of a rail-mad across the desert of Sahara. The projected railway would run from Algiers to Timbuctoo, a distance of 2,500 kilometres. Timbuctoo, a distance of 2,500 kilometres.

M. Duponchel stated that the principal portion of the line would rest during nearly its whole extent on layers of sand, and toward the end on primitive volcanic rocks, granite, gueiss, etc. No mountainous obstructions would have to be encountered. The average heat does not appear to exceed 23° or 24° Centrigrade, (73° 2-5° or 75° 1-5° Fahenheit,) but account must be taken of the great variations which occur in the 24 hours. For instance, occasionally, a very cold night succeeds a temperature of 40° Centigrade, (104° Fahrenheit in the day time. The great difficulty to be overcome would be the great want of water, which is not to be procured in that region, M. Duponchel calculates that for three trains daily the amount of water required would be 4,000 cubic metres, and that the engineering science of the day is quite sufficient to supply even a much greater quantity at the requisite points.

it acts directly upon the liver, restoring it when diseased to its normal condition; and in regulating the activity of this great gland every fibre organ of the system is benefited. In Blood Diseases it has no equal as a purifier. It improves digestion, and assists nature to eliminate all impurities from the system; and while it is the cheapest medicine in the market, it is also uperior to all known remedies. While it is nore effectual than Bine Mass, it is mild and erfectly safe, containing nothing that can in the lightest degree injur: the system. It does not seken or give pain; neither does it weaken the attent nor leave the system constipated, as do not other medicines.

It CUFCS pepsia, Billous Fever, it and ache, Sick Headache, Water-Brash, theartburn, Sick Stomach, Jaundlee, Colic, Vertigo, Neuralgia, Palpitation of the Heart, Female Irregularities and Weakness, all Skin and Blood Diseases, Worms, Fever and Ague, and Constipation of the Bowels.

In small doses it is also a sure cure for thronic Diarrinea.

o the Citizens of Atlanta: As it is well known to the most of you, and at the solicitation of many of you, I am a candidate for Mayor, and respectfully ask your suffrages. I have grown up with the city of Atlanta, and, to me, her soil and her people are sacred. For her success I have, in the past, labored most earnestly, and in her prosperity I have rejoiced. Her mer-rantile, manufacturing, mechanical and profes-sional interests, and all her institutions, are dear to me and will recieve my warmest encourage-ment. If elected I pledge that the best efforts of my life shall be devoted to her interests, and that, so far as my power goes, there shall be an honest administration of the laws, a full observance of the rights of all the people of all classes, and an economical management of the finances of the conomical management of the finances of the ity, and, while keeping in view these cardinal principles, I would have our city keep pace with the progress of the age in all that tends to build up great city and elevate its people.

355 nov19 dtd W. L. CALHOUN. J. W. English Announces for Mayor. considerable number of citizens, I have con ented to become a candidate for Mayor, and I Having been a member of the City Council, and Chairman of the Finance Committee, for the past wo years, I think I have become sufficiently niliar with the city's wants and necessities to to be able to discharge the duties which devolve apon the Mayor of the city acceptably to the rigid economy in all our expenditures, so that we may hope, in a reasonable time, for a reduced rate of taxation. I shall, as a matter of pride, strive also to maintain our reputation as a live and progressive people.

In pursuance of these objects, I promise you, if elected, whatever of ability and energy I possess shall in the future, as in the past, be faithfully and untiringly devoted to the development of the material interests and prosperty of our city.

Very respectfully, JAMES W. ENGLISH.

General A. C. Garlington arrived in the city yesterday from his home in South Carolina. He informs us that Governor Hampton is in a very critical condition from the injuries received a few days ago, when his leg was so badly broken. It is thought he may lose his leg, and his friends very much fear he will not survive amputation. Governor Hampton is opposed to having the limb taken off. There are symptoms of erysipelas in his case that makes the injuries more serious.

ROME, GA., November 16, 1878.

Entrors Constitution—Several prominent gentlemen of our little city have called my attention to a list of contributions made by cities, north and south, for the relief of the late yellow fever sufferers, and that ours was omitted, and while we do not desire any unreasonable display of our charity, nor do we expect as small a city as ours to be noticed by papers outside of our state in a general way like your notice yesterday, still we do feel a little neglected when the leading paper of our state gives place to such notice and mentions cities outside of the state who gave less than $1,000, and fails to include Rome, your neighbor city, who gave $1,400. And since we have had to call your attention to the matter, we wish to add that this amount is not made up by all the little towns and villages in north Georgia, but by Rome and our immediate vicinity. We have sent $540 to New Orleans, $500 to Memphis, $155 to Chattanooga, $75 to Vicksburg, $50 to Holly Springs, and $50 to Canton, making a total of $1,400 in cash, not supplies. ROME, GA., November 16, 1878.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Mr. Howell moved to reconsider the action of the senate of yesterday in adopting the majority report of the committee appointed to report what officers are to be elected by the general assembly. He was satisfied that the action of the senate was satisfied that the action of the senate was elected by the general assembly. He was satisfied that the action of the senate was improper; stated what he believed was the intention of the constitutional convention, and read from the debates of the convention as it would be construed by the courts. Judge Grice's holding his office might, perhaps, admit of an investigation, yet there could be no doubt of the other two. He gave other reasons why this action of the senate should be reconsidered.

Mr. Grimes was more than ever confirmed in his opinion that it was right to support the majority report. He discussed at some length the condition of the position of the judges in the Atlanta, Macon and the southwestern circuits. He thought the question had been ably argued by the senate, particularly by the advocates of the minority report, and he could see no additional reason why the minority report should be adopted.

Mr. Speer had only a word toadd to what had been said by him. Judges itillyer and Crisp held the two youngest commissions. Do centlemen say they had no commissions.

Mr. Hudson agreed with Mr. Howell in his position. The only guide for the senate in the election of judges is found on pages 31 and 35 of the constitution. He complimented the handsome and eloquient young senator from Columbus, who had said Judges Crisp and Hillyer were not full-fledged judges. If the gentleman would appear before Judge Crisp in one of his countrs, he would conclude that he was a full-fledged judge. He stated that gentleman had argued that Hillyer and Crisp had not been confirmed by the legislature. How not leave the notice at the nouse shall be deemed sufficient advertisement.

"I desire to record my vote for Gordon for (Signed) ARTHUR H. GRAY, of Catoosa." The speaker announced that there were 165 votes for General Gordon, four votes for ex-Governor Johnson, one vote for Hon. W. E. Smith. He said: "The result cannot be finally announced until to-morrow at noon, when the house will meet in joint session to hear the result. Although it is not strictly in order. I will expecually his these these less than the result.

ly in order. I will announce that the senate has voted unanimously for the Hon. John B. Gordon." [Applause.]

The house resumed its business.
By request of the committee on enrollment Dr. Paull, of Calhoun, was added to as to the proper posting of the notice. The section was amended as suggested by Mr. Hanks.

The bill was further amended in important particulars, and then the report of the judiciary committee in favor of its passage was adopted. On the passage of the bill there were 133 yeas and I nay, and the bill passed.

The finance committee requested that 300 copies of Mr. Awtry's "Moffett register bill" be printed for the use of the house.

Mr. Alston moved to amend by having his bill on the same subject also printed.

The chair sustained the point of order that a bill can be printed only on recommendation of the committee.

Mr. Alston said he did not think it very courteous to print one bill and not the other.

Mr. Miller, of Houston; said that no discourtesy had been intended for Mr. Alston; the committee merely wished to save the expense of printing both bills.

Three hundred copies of Mr. Awtry's bill were ordered printed by the house.

The judiciary committee made a report, which was read.
On motion of Mr. Strother, of Lincoln.

On motion of Mr. Strother, of Lincoln, the house adjourned to 10 o'clock to-morrow.

The bill was resid the third time. The judiciary committee recommended the passage of the bill. Amended.

They amended by declaring that the title shall be published once in the newspaper in which the sheriff's advertisements are published, and by posting for thirty days, and that a copy of the paper with the published title in it be exhibited as evidence of a compliance with the published title in the exhibited as evidence of a compliance with the provisions of law on the subject.

Several amendments were rejected. Mr. Duggar, of Fannin, offered an amendment that the notice be merely posted and not put in a newspaper at all.

Mr. Turner, of Brooks, opposed the amendment.

Mr. Duggar, of Fannin, replied, ably defending his amendment.

Mr. Alston, of DeKalb, moved that the proper place.

As has been announced the above named gentleman has been made cashier of the Merchants' bank of this city. Had the management of the bank thoroughly inspected the business qualifications of the reliable men of the city they could not have been happier in their selection of one to fill this important position. Reliable, courteous, well qualified, extensively acquainted and popular with all classes, we feel assured that the action of the management of the bank will be unanimously indorsed by the busness men not only of Atlanta but also of the surrounding country. The courteous manner and genial face of Mr. Porter will be missed at the Union passenger depot, yet his old friends, and all who may call at the bank, will find the same prompt, cheerful and thorough business man in the new cashier, J. H. Porter.

An Undeniable Truth.

You deserve to suffer, and if you lead a miserable, unsatisfactory life in this beautiful world, it is entirely your own fault, and ful world, it is entirely your own fault, and there is only one excuse for you—your un-reasonable prejudice and skepticism, which has killed thousands. Personal knowledge and common sense reasoning will show you that Green's August Flower will cure you of Liver Complaint, or Dyspepsia, with all its miserable effects, such as sick headache, palpitation of the heart, sour stomach, habitual costiveness, dizziness of the head, nervous prostration, low spirits, etc. Its sales now reach every town on the Western Continent and not a Druggist but will tell you of its wonderful cures. You can buy a Sample Bottle for 10 cents. Three doses will relieve you.
